Chess rules course: the king

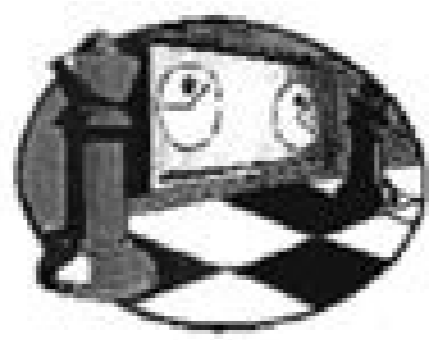

INTRODUCTION

Chess is a 2-player board game. The board consists of 8 ranks and 8 files (64 squares). Left below, the board should start with a black (or dark) square.

EXERC. START

A Brief Guide to the Rules of Chess

- ✓ The chessboard is placed so that the white square is on the right side of the player.
- ✓ The player with the White pieces always moves first.
- ✓ A pawn on reaching the last rank can be exchanged for a Queen, Rook, Bishop or Knight as part of the same move. The effect of this promoted piece is immediate. So if the pawn is promoted to a Queen, the Queen, if it is in a position to do so, may check or checkmate the enemy King.
- ✓ Each move must be made with only one hand.
- ✓ A piece that is touched must be moved unless moving this piece would place the King in check. This is called the "touch-move rule".
- ✓ If an opponent's piece is touched then it must be captured if possible. If this is not possible then play continues as if that piece had not been touched.
- ✓ A person may adjust a piece on the chessboard on her move by saying "jadoube" which is French for "I adjust".
- ✓ When casting, the King must be moved first and then the Rook brought to stand on the opposite side to the King.
- ✓ When using a clock, the button must be pressed with the hand which moved the piece on the chessboard.
- ✓ All play should be conducted with respect for the opponent. A player should not distract or annoy her opponent in any way.

It would be very interesting for me, because I believe that the particular format is quite suitable for classic chess as it is fundamentally needed to be able to play the game even at decent way. However, if there is more than one tower on the baseline on the same side of the king, and the tower that can castle is not the outermost tower on that side, then the file letter (capital for white) of the tower that can castle is used instead of "k", "k", "q" or "q"; In X-Fen notation, the calming potentials belong to the outermost rooks by default. It's much better, I think, because chess is becoming more and more just memorization, because the power of memorization is so awful in chess now. ^ "Chess Classic Mainz 2010 (CCM10) 2010-08-06 - 2010-08-08." ^ "2012 results." ^ "Reykjavik Open: Fireouza shines." ^ "La RÅ© Gence: Journal des Å Å© Chess, Volume 3, La partie aux PÅ Å© PlacÅ Å© es (Anno 1851 Page 299-301)" ^ Pritchard (2000), p. ^ Carlsen, nakamura in the game of Chess960 high-stakes. ^ Rybka won the 2007 computer championship.
